

What's Up With Animals?™

"Believe, Be Open, Be Willing to be Surprised!"

Feb 2014

Greetings!

It's that time again! We've made it through the dark nights of early winter, and Valentine's Day is just a few weeks away. The lengthening days and warmth of the sun bring a reason to hope. To celebrate that, I like to offer a gift to clients who purchase consultations at this time of year, as my way of saying, "I appreciate you!"

From February 1st through the 15th, everyone who requests a standard consultation with me will receive the gift of a free ticket to a very special online Animal Energy Workshop to be held on Sunday, February 16th.

If your animal is experiencing anxiety, behavioral issues, physical challenges, sadness, or pain, the combination of a telepathic session and long-distance energy work may be just the combination that will open the door to renewed health, relaxation, and happiness for both of you.

Debra Cummings

The workshop will be conducted by my dear friend, the gifted Debra Cummings, a practitioner whose compassion and kindness permeate everything she does. She is dedicated to ending suffering on our planet, and to awakening joy and peace in people and animals, helping them to live to their highest potential. You will love her.

During the workshop, in which you can participate online or by phone, you'll have an opportunity to work on three or four of the issues your animals are facing, and as an added bonus, you can submit the names of your animals to Deb so she can continue to work on them energetically for the rest of the month.

The usual cost for Deb's Animal Energy Workshop is $35, but through February 15th, it's my gift to you, with a paid consultation. That's a $110 value for $75! You'll receive log-in instructions when I receive your request. The workshop will be held on Sunday, February, 16th at 1:00pm Eastern (12:00pm Central, and 10:00am Pacific).

I'm excited to announce that I'll be sponsoring a weekend workshop in the fall of 2015, featuring Caroline Thomas of Hoof and Paw Holistic Therapies in the UK. Caroline is a registered Bach Flower Practitioner, and is also proficient in a variety of other complementary modalities, including Aromatherapy, Crystal Healing, EFT, and Reiki. I have long admired her work, and am thrilled that she's agreed to come to the Boston area for this event. I'll keep you posted as soon as we have more details, including location, dates and prices.

If you haven't yet joined our community on the Animal Translations Facebook page, I hope you will!

From my heart to yours,

Maureen

Animal Communication Story of the Month

CASEY, THE CAT WHO CARED

Claire asked me to talk with her sweet Ragdoll cat, Casey. He's a gregarious, funny, friendly, and all-around great cat, but Claire and her husband were losing sleep over him, literally.

Not only did Casey pace at night, but he insisted on opening closet doors and rattling window shades in the master bedroom during the darkest hours. His night-after-night antics had left Claire and her husband exhausted and exasperated. Could I find out why Casey was so rambunctious in the midnight hours, Claire wanted to know, and more important, could I persuade him to stop?

When I connected with Casey, he admitted that he did want Claire and her husband to wake up. The question was: why?

I wasn't prepared for what he said next. It turned out that Casey's middle-of-the-night rumblings were inspired by his fear that one of his "parents" had stopped breathing, and his purpose in rousing them was to make sure they were okay. He knew if he could wake them, they'd have to breathe!

Claire and her husband were astonished when I told them what Casey had shared. It turns out that in fact, Claire's husband has been diagnosed with sleep apnea, and there are times when his breathing does momentarily cease. They had no idea that Casey had understood the danger, and that all he wanted to do was to help.

Interestingly, after my session with Casey, Claire reported that her dear cat has been much more relaxed and that he's begun to sleep through the night again. I'd suggested to Casey that instead of creating noises that would disturb his sleeping parents, he could jump up on the bed and wake them if he perceived that one of them had really stopped breathing. That's a solution that seems to be working for everyone.

*The cases discussed here are real, but to protect their privacy, I may have changed the names of my clients and their animals.

A Word of Thanks

From an Appreciative Client

Chloe

I've never minded people who are skeptical about whether telepathic animal communication is possible. And I love it when a new client becomes a believer.

That's what happened to Kristen last summer, when she asked me to connect with her beloved Chloe, who had recently died. While she was desperate to hear from Chloe, Kristen wasn't really sure how this could work. What Chloe said convinced her that telepathic communication--whether with an animal in her body or in spirit--is real.

She wrote:

"Maureen communicated a few weeks after my dog Chloe passed in June 2013. I was completely grief stricken, as Chloe had shared 15-1/2 years with me. I was skeptical about animal communication, but after receiving Maureen's written transcript of the session, I was no longer.

After the complete shock wore off, I knew from the bottom of my heart that she had communicated with Chloe. The information was very specific and I truly feel Maureen has an incredible gift. I am grateful for the time she spent with Chloe and with me, as well as following up with me afterwards.

It was an eye-opening experience and I am so thankful."

What's Up With Your Animals?

There are so many ways to communicate with animals, as these stories attest. Animals are natural telepathic communicators, and it's because they're so good at it that I can "hear" them.

If you think that you and your animal would benefit from a telepathic consultation, please drop me a note, give me a call, or follow me on Twitter @AnimalsTalking.

Until Next Time!
